

Are you a Bookworm?

Recently a visitor told us of a novel which mentions the flannel mills in Newtown. The title is "Not one of us" and by Alis Hawkins. So we started putting together a list of fiction books featuring the weaving industry in Newtown (directly or as an alias), which we will put on display for visitors

Suggestions so far:

- Not One of Us by Alis Hawkins (visitor suggestion)
- The Apple Boughs by Desley Moore
- Such Morning Songs by Desley Moore
- Once Below A Time by Desley Moore
- Come Michaelmas by Geraint Goodwin (about Newtown although not named as such)
- Call Back Yesterday by Geraint Goodwin
- The Heyday in the Blood by Geraint Goodwin
- The White Farm and Other Stories by Geraint Goodwin
- Watch for the Morning by Geraint Goodwin
- The Collected Short Stories of Geraint Goodwin by Geraint Goodwin
- My People. Short Stories by Geraint Goodwin
- Shearing and Other Stories by Geraint Goodwin

We need help on 3 fronts:

1. Any more? Have you read or heard of any more books featuring the Newtown and or the Weaving Industry?
2. Relevant or not? Do you know which of these are relevant, particularly the Geraint Goodwin novels and stories?
3. Any copies? Do you have any copies, which you are willing to donate/lend to the museum for shared use?
